

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 14 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:

A lot of dry weather, although the odd shower.

This Evening and Tonight:

Any rain in eastern England continuing to ease away, leaving a lot of low cloud and some fog mainly on hills. Scattered showers in the west and north, mainly near coasts, some clear spells elsewhere and again some fog patches.

Wednesday:

A lot of dry, bright weather, although sunshine amounts varying; feeling warm in any sunshine. Scattered showers may affect some western and northern areas, perhaps sharp for a few places.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:

Mostly dry with sunny spells Thursday. Cloud and rain, locally heavy, spreads from the west from Friday but staying dry further east until later. Then, showers with some brighter periods.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.